HARRY TAPPAN NOT DESERTER

Lexington, Ky., June 22.—Friends of Harry Tappan, the Hopkinsville soldier who was sentenced to serve five years in the state reformatory for killing Andrew Anderson, and shooting Mary Gill, by a jury in the circuit court here Tuesday night, are making an effort to have Tappan pardoned or given an opportunity to rejoin his regiment for active service. Tappan declares that he is not a deserter from the army, and that he had been away from his station on leave only three days when he got into the trouble for which he was convicted, and an enlisted man is not branded as a deserter until he has been away from his regiment without leave for ten days.

Although he was pronounced unfit for overseas duty, Tappan is anxious to join the army, and if not permitted to do so, but required to serve his sentence, wants to be committed to the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.
